Invitations Spurned

HEIDELBERG, Germany (Spl.)—While the dispute over whether or not the leading universities of the world should participate continues to rock the academic world, Heidelberg University is proceeding with preparations for the celebration of its 550th anniversary celebration in June.

Oxford University in England, supported shortly afterwards by several other internationally known institutions, was first to spurn invitations to the Heidelberg observance, on grounds that the historic university is on longer a center of intellectual liberalism. The charges were based mainly on the university's anti-Jewish activities.

Students protested vigorously when Columbia, Cornell and Harvard Universities in America accepted the invitations shortly after Oxford had taken the opposite view. Since then numerous institutions in the United States have lined up on either side of the issue.

It is anticipated by many that the celebration will be largely a camouflaged propaganda scheme for the Nazi Party to intrench itself more firmly. A prime factor in this belief is the change of the university's real anniversary date, which is in October, to the anniversary of Hitler's notorious "blood purge" in June, 1933.

Founded in 1386 and acquiring a reputation which persisted through five centuries, Heidelberg has today lost much of its prestige as a result of Nazi interference with academic ideals.

Charges Hurlled Back And Forth By Fund Heads

NEW YORK (JTA)—Charges in a two-column editorial in this week's issue of The New Palestine, organ of the Zionist Organization of America, that he and other leaders of the Joint Distribution Committee were trying to undermine the United Palestine Appeal's campaign for $3,500,000, were emphatically denied by Rabbi Jonah B. Wise in a statement to the Jewish Telegraphic Agency.

Describing Rabbi Wise as "a persistent and unreserved enemy of Palestine and its implications," the editorial declared that in confidentially addressing influential groups throughout the country, he had sought to minimize the importance of Palestine in the present situation of World Jewry in an effort to win greater support for the J. D. C. campaign for a like sum.

Answering this charge, Rabbi Wise made the following statement:

"They were quite misinformed. We have no such attitude and we pursue no such tactics. We put our problem before communities and make no reference that I know of to programs of other groups."

Requesting a public statement by the J.D.C. "as to its intentions and purpose," the editorial concluded with the announcement that the U.P.A. is prepared to submit the question of parity with the J.D.C. in its demands for funds to a plebiscite "in every Jewish community in America," or to any impartial tribunal.

Captioned, "Is the J.D.C. Preparing a Fund Raising Campaign or a Nationwide Controversy?" the editorial follows in part:

"There is substantial reason to doubt that the Joint Distribution Committee is displaying that good will and good faith toward the cause of Palestine, which was expected to be maintained in 1936, especially in view of the closer relations established between them in the Council for German Jewry....

"The United Palestine Appeal has the deepest sympathy for the stated purposes of the J.D.C. It wishes with all sincerity that the full quota of the J.D.C. may be reached. The task which faces it would require even larger funds. But there is an equally great (in our view, a far greater), purpose

Sea Going Synagogue

LONDON (Spl.)—A permanent synagogue complete with scrolls, prayerbooks and all other ritual appurtenances, and two kosher kitchens, all conforming to rigid Jewish precepts, are a feature of the new liner Queen Mary, launched recently at Southampton. The synagogue will be consecrated by Dr. J. H. Hertz, chief rabbi of the British Empire. Designed exclusively for Jewish use, it will be available for all services, including yahrzeit and kaddish prayers. To avoid desecration the synagogue is to be locked when not in use for Jewish worship.

The kosher kitchens were added, according to officials, to answer the complaint that Jewish service on liners heretofore has been much slower than ordinary service. The difficulty has been overcome in the Queen Mary by locating one of the kitchens at a spot just as accessible as the main kitchen, for cabin or tourist class passengers. The other kitchen is for third class voyagers.

The synagogue was designed by Cecil Jacob Eprile, Jewish architect.

I wonder what conclusions have been reached by the committee who sought unsuccessfully last year to bring 250 Jewish children into homes of Jews in the United States. According to last reports less than 150 children have been placed. In the face of the acceptance by Palestine's 300,000 Jewish population of almost a thousand of these pitiful victims of Nazism, the dereliction on the part of American Jewish women must have caused many who praised the Hadassah and the Council of Jewish Women and so many other women's organizations to revise their estimate of the generosity and charitableness of American Jewry. It is one thing to give money, arrange a card party, sponsor a benefit affair, but it is too great a sacrifice to give a hopeless youngster a clean, happy home. I wonder if the demands of the god of Bridge, the modern Baal, have anything to do with the smug coldness and the contented selfishness of American Jewish mothers.

Germany's short wave station, DJC, at Berlin, whose propaganda broadcasts are arranged solely for American consumption, has devised another scheme to gain American good will. This time it is a broadcast on John Jacob Astor who was born in Wallfort, near Heidelberg. You can listen in on the program at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, if you have a short wave set.

If you move and fail to write to the Circulation Department, you almost invariably miss at least one issue of this paper. Not only does your paper fail to arrive, but you are taking a chance that the Postoffice Department may not forward your new address to us, so that the period during which your paper cannot be mailed to you is considerably longer. Jews No longer Take Care Of Their Poor

A growing feeling that the vaunted Jewish belief that Jewish people take care of their own poor through their own agencies was based less on fact than on hearsay, was given statistical authenticity when the National Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds released a survey revealing that for some time Jews have not taken care of their poor. In fact 240 out of 241 Jewish relief heads stated that public relief for Jewish poor has long been the accepted fact. In addition, almost 200 of the leaders declared that public help for Jewish poor should be permanent, even after the disappearance of all effects of the depression.

In these facts Jewish pride takes a long drop on the road to disrespect. However, concealing the situation beclouds the ultimate solution just so much longer. Jewish poor, it may be well known, have these many years become public charges because of the inadequacy of contributions to local Jewish relief agencies, because the economic situation took the problem out of the hands of Jewish welfare funds, and because the men heading the funds combined these two factors and did the only thing left for them to do.

As a solution fund leaders suggest, and their opinion must be taken as authoritative, that the government continue to care for Jewish poor. About a hundred who answered the survey declared that aid from Jewish sources should supplement government relief, with about the same number pointing out the danger in this arrangement.

If the report accomplishes no other one thing it will convince many Jewish people that realities must be faced, not only in connection with the Jewish relief problem, but with many other Jewish difficulties such as economic discrimination, non-affiliation with synagogues and Temples and general apathy to essential Jewish interests.

Free Speech Tied Up In Shylock Decision

In approving the presentation of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," Hackensack, New Jersey's supervising principal, John A. Wilcox, probably had no more respect for Shakespeare's portrayal of Shylock as the grasping Jew than Rabbi Irving Silman, who first raised the cry against the inclusion of the play in the school curriculum.

It is our contention that the controversy as it was finally and adversely decided rested not on the point in connection with Shakespeare's black portrayal of the Jew, but with the larger and more involved problem of free speech.

Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" was written long before Hackensack was founded. And long before Rabbi Silman came to Hackensack this immortal drama was read and studied in the schools of that city. So that Rabbi Silman and a group of outstanding citizens and leaders, Jewish and non-Jewish, could no doubt, have approached the school officials say, a year ago, when the incident was not in its present incited stage, calmly explained the ill-will engendered by the portrayal, and as in other cities, prevailed upon the mto substitute for "The Merchant of Venice" another of the great dramatist's plays.

Other communities should take a lesson from the New Jersey incident, and arrange with school authorities for the deletion of the play from regular study schedules before a controversy brings factors into the situation which otherwise would have no consideration in the eventual decision.

Even liberals have by now established limits. They do not condone stealing, nor do they condone blackmail. And it is questionable whether the ill-will and bad future effects of the Shylock presentation would be weighed even in the mind of the liberal against an admittedly untrue vilification of a people.

Praise Due The Southeastern Express Company

Following the example of the Boy Scout Organization of England, the Southeastern Express Company has ordered removal of the swastika emblem from their stationery, trucks, and other property. At considerable expense this firm has "in order not to give offense to our Jewish friends" repainted the trucks, ordered new stationery and what is more sacrificed the long-standing insignia by which the general public has identified the company.

To our knowledge the company made the decision of its own free will. The firm is simply extending a gesture of friendship to its Jewish friends.

If an example of good-will in business is needed, the Southeastern Express Company has led the way. Firms who behind the excuse of financial loss have refused to support the boycott front have here an incident which transcends the dollar and cents factor. The move of the Southeastern Express Company is a noble gesture and a sincere sacrifice.

Seders For College Students

If you were a young Jewish student at a college far distant from your home, and if in addition you were accustomed to a warm home life, you would feel a void on Passover when you could almost see with the vividness of a pleasant memory, the members of your family gathered around the festive table and your father pronouncing the traditional service.

In every city of any size in the nation there will be many homes who would graciously welcome a student to share the Passover meal. Not only will the observance of the holiday be enhanced for the family by inviting the stranger to join in, but for the most part these students are intelligent, highly alive young Jewish people who make pleasant company.

You can perform this "mitzvah" by calling your rabbi who will be pleased at your kindness, or by calling the Jewish Community Center in your city.

Names Jewish Boys For Naval Academy

BOSTON (Spl.)—Harold Zimmon of this city, named by Congressman John P. Higgins as his principal nominee to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, is believed to be the first boy of Jewish descent who has been named for this honor by a representative of any Boston district. Abraham Tobin, of Chelsea, Mass., another Jewish boy, was named alternate for the appointment, examinations for which are to be held April 15.

Congressman Higgins is not Jewish, but he is widely known for his liberal views. Both selections have met with vigorous approval.

CHARGES HURLED

that has been undertaken by the United Palestine Appeal....

"The United Palestine Appeal aims to raise $3,500,000 during 1936 in the United States. The Joint Distribution Committee seeks a similar amount. Our budget is just as legitimate and just as essential as the budget of the J.D.C. It is unfair to match a budget of the Jewish Agency for Palestine with the form of budgetary appropriations made by the J.D.C. The one is the budget of a responsible public organization, the other is a budget drawn up in camera, about which there is no discussion and which involves only voluntary appropriations....

"Having the same financial goal as the J.D.C., conscious that the whole future of Jewish life in Europe largely depends upon the quickest possible upbuilding of the Jewish National Home, knowing that there can be used for creative and permanent purposes in Palestine in the services of Jews persecuted both in Poland and in Germany, twice and three times the amount of money which we are asking for, the United Palestine Appeal would be recreant in its responsibility if it did not insist at least upon parity in the Welfare Chests and in all local joint campaigns the United Palestine Appeal cannot, dare not, and will not accept less than parity.

"The United Palestine Appeal is prepared to submit that issue to a plebiscite in every Jewish community in America. It is prepared to submit its just claims to any impartial tribunal. It has a right to ask for peace and harmony, mutual understanding, which expediency if not dignity and self-respect would dictate at this time in connection with an internal Jewish matter. The United Palestine Appeal will not agree to allow those surreptitious and secret confidences and arguments to be made before the Welfare Chests of many communities without any opportunity on our part to meet these arguments and dispose of their inaccuracies, insinuations and prejudices. We submit that by condoning and giving its tacit approval to the mission of Jonah Wise and others like him, the Joint Distribution Committee is not serving the best interests of distressed Jewry.

Wants Information On How To Bring Relatives To U. S.

Dear Mr. Markun:

In your issue of March 13 we noticed an article stating that 200 Jewish exiles landed in New York and that relatives had posted bonds to insure that they would not become public charges.

As we have relatives in Germany and Nicaragua, we would like some information as to where to get the bonds, etc.

Your prompt attention to this matter would be greatly appreciated.

ABE HORWITZ.

El Paso, Tex.

Dear Mr. Horwitz:

If you follow these instructions closely and can meet all the conditions required, I am sure you should be able to arrange for the entry of your relative or relatives into the United States.

I am sending you an affidavit in quadruplicate form on which you set forth that you are capable and willing to support your relative until such time as he may find work and that he will not become a burden on the United States. Fill out all four sheets of this affidavit and mail it together with a bank statement and letter indicating your net worth to the relative you desire to bring into the United States, with the instruction that he proceed to the United States Consul nearest his home.

This first step having been completed, your relative must convince the U. S. Consul he visits that he will not become a public charge in the U. S. If the Consul judges, after studying your affidavits and letters, that the applicant will not become a public charge, he will issue a visa, which is nothing more than a certificate of travel. This visa will be accepted by the steamship companies, who will only then allow the applicant to embark for the U. S. You do not correspond directly with this Consul at any time. If however your affidavits and other letters are considered insufficient for any specific reason, you may, if you have further evidence on this point, write to the Consul.

With this permission to travel to the U. S. (the visa), your relative will arrive at one of the ports of entry into the U. S., probably New York City. Here the State Department loses jurisdiction to the Department of Immigration, a part of the Department of Labor, who must be satisfied that the alien is of sound mind and body, and not afflicted with any permanent disease. In case the alien is ill with a temporary ailment, you may be called on to post a bond to guarantee treatment until such time as recovery is made.

I have definite information that the immigration quota from Germany has not been filled for the past four or five years, so that if you can satisfy these requirements you should not experience too much difficulty in arranging for the entry of your relatives from Germany. I do not have information to this effect about Nicaragua, but in any event the visa should be applied for so that your relatives there may be in line for entry.

In forwarding your affidavits to your relative in Germany, (you must have a complete set for each relative you hope to bring here) you must include an R. G. Dun & Co., financial report. You must also state your present obligations and the number of people who now depend on you for support.

Swastika Abolished As Symbol

U.S. Firm Removes Nazi Signs From All Trucks

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (Spl.)—The swastika, heretofore prominently displayed on all trucks and stationery of the Southeastern Express Company, has been abolished as the company's emblem because of its adoption by the Nazis.

K. O. Sample, general agent, explained that his company used the swastika long before Hitler's advent, but is dropping this symbol completely to avoid offense because of the implied friendliness to the Nazi regime. Mr. Sample said there was no connection between his firm's use of the swastika and its adoption by the Nazis.

In order to remove the emblem the firm has repainted all of its old trucks, and has ordered the symbol to be omitted from its new trucks.

Rides Entry For Bradley

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (Spl.)—That a Jewish jockey may ride the winner of the greatest turf classic in the United States, the Kentucky Derby, became a distinct possibility with signing of Joe Renick to ride Col. E. R. Bradley's prize three-year-old, Bien Joli, in the autocratic race.

Renick was signed by Col. Bradley, famed turf figure, as contract rider, to replace Don Meade, who was suspended by Florida turf authorities.

Considered one of the best riding contracts on the turf, the job with Col. Bradley, who has already saddled three Derby winners, came to Renick after a successful campaign during the winter racing season.

Renick's brother is under contract to Alfred Gwynn Vanderbilt.

Tel Aviv, famed as the first all-Jewish city in the world, has a population of 135,000.

7,000 Jobless Britons Get Work From Refugee Jews

LONDON (JTA)—Nearly 7,000 British workers have been given employment during the past two years in industries founded by German-Jewish refugees, the House of Commons was told by Geoffrey Lloyd, undersecretary of the Home Office. Mr. Lloyd put the number of enterprises organized by the refugees at more than 200.

Sees Danger For Science

LONDON (JTA)—On behalf of the Academic Assistance Council, Lord Rutherford, famous physicist and holder of the Nobel Prize for Chemistry, last week issued an appeal for the creation of a permanent society for the protection of science and learning.

"Devastation of the German universities," Lord Rutherford declares in the appeal, "still continues. Not only university teachers of Jewish descent, but others who are regarded as 'politically unreliable,' are prevented from making contributions to the common cause scholarship."

The appeal states that the society would create a fund to award research fellowships at British and other universities for the most distinguished of refugee scholars.

ANNUAL MEET FRIDAY

PHILADELPHIA (Spl.)—The 48th annual meeting of the Jewish Publication Society of America will be held at Dropsie College Sunday night. Speakers will be B. W. Huebsch, vice president of the Viking Press of New York City, and Bernard L. Frankel of Philadelphia.

WARSAW (JTA)—Violent anti-Jewish rioting continues unchecked in Warsaw, Lodz and numerous provincial towns.

Spurred by unhampered agitation, anti-Semitic mobs in this city launched street attacks that resulted in serious injury to an aged Jew, Mendel Goldmann, who was removed to a hospital. A group of mourners at a funeral in a Jewish cemetery was attacked by another mob using stones and other missiles as weapons. The mourners were forced to take refuge in the cemetery office until arrival of police.

The most serious situation developed in the city of Lodz, forcing the Jewish community there to appeal to Warsaw for aid. Deputy Minczberg addressed an urgent appeal for intervention to the Minister of Interior.

A Palestine training farm at Galli, near Radom, was attacked by hoodlums, who demolished the office building and seriously injured a young girl. Several arrests were made, police establishing that the hoodlums are members of the Endek Party.

Other disorders occurred at Klobuck, near Czenstochow, where a police captain was among those injured; at Pajentszno, near Radom; and at Karczew near Warsaw.

An appeal by Cardinal Hiond of Poznan urging all Catholics to abstain from participation in the anti-Jewish rioting failed to stem the excesses. The Cardinal, however, advised the public to continue the economic boycott against Jews.

One of the most serious clashes occurred at Lublan, near the city of Lwow, when a mob of peasants led by Endek agitators attacked a group of Jewish students en route from Lwow to the Polish Academy of Agriculture at Lublan.

The students put up stiff resistance until arrival of police, two of whom were injured when the mob loosed a stone barrage. Seventeen students sustained injuries. The school was ordered closed indefinitely as a result of the riot.

A mob in the town of Nowo Wilejka, near Wilno, raided Jewish houses, smashing windows, and attacked Jews in the streets. The two injured were the aged Rabbi Eliakum Landman of Nowo Wilejka, and Enoch Lewitan, Jewish alderman of Wilno. One of the hoodlums was arrested.

Meanwhile anti-Semites were given encouragement by the action of the Wilno Court of Appeals in setting aside sentences of one to five years on Endek students who had been convicted of bombing synagogues and other Jewish institutions.

A.Z.A. Meet Big Success

Forty-five out-of-town delegates attended the all-day A. Z. A. conclave held at the Kirshbaum Community Center Sunday. Visitors from Dayton and South Bend were guests of the local chapter at the basketball games, debate and dance.

The basketball tourney was won by the powerful South Bend team, which defeated the local A. Z. A. team 39-14, after having eliminated the tall Dayton squad in a stirring game, 20-19. Barkun and Weiss were the outstanding stars for the powerful South Bend team, while Bornstein and Crash showed up well for the smaller local A. Z. A. team.

The debate in the evening was a no-decision affair. The local debaters were Harold Stolkin and David Tavel.

The dance, held at the Hotel Lincoln in the evening, was a social success, being attended by two hundred and fifty persons.

U. S. SENATORS FLAY POLISH ANTI-SEMITISM

Seven Join In Bitter Censure Of Pogroms

NEW YORK (JTA)—Violence against the Jews in Poland was condemned by five senators and two representatives in telegrams made public today by the American Jewish Congress. They are Senators Key Pittman, Carter Glass, William G. McAdoo and Robert F. Wagner and Representatives John W. McCormack and John D. Dingell.

Senator McAdoo, of California, declared: "America under Wilson was foremost in the reestablishment of Poland as an independent nation. I personally have followed its progress with great interest, but I have with genuine regret observed the outbreak of violence against its Jewish citizens. I earnestly hope for the immediate suppression of these outbreaks and for definite and prompt steps to insure the safety of the Polish Jews."

The message of Senator Wagner, of New York, stated: "It is a terrible thing to see the areas of violence and prejudice and persecution expanding rather than shrinking. Above all, any government whose own integrity depends upon world sentiment and support should be ashamed to violate the principles of freedom and justice within its own borders. I know that the influence of the American people will be exerted toward constraining any erring government to grant justice to its Jewish citizens."

Mr. Pittman, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was quoted as follows:

"Like every American citizen, I deeply abhor tyranny and persecution, both governmental and individual. Such persecutions are incomprehensible. Today peoples and those in control of many governments seem to me to be approaching hysteria bordering upon what appears to be a form of governmental insanity. Democracy today exists in very few countries. Queer ideas of nationalism, of the right of nations and their liberties and the administration of government seem to be cropping up throughout the world. We think democracy is the best form of government and we cannot understand why peoples in many places have turned to some form of arbitrary, cruel and uncontrolled dictatorships."

Doctor Is Candidate

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (Spl.)—Dr. Isaac Stalberg, who recently endorsed the Townsend old age revolving pension plan, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for congress from the second congressional district of New Jersey.

With the Townsend plan under severe fire in congressional attacks, prominent leaders of the movement have begun to withdraw as quickly as possible, throwing peculiar light on the cause of their withdrawal. For this reason the Jewish doctor is given little chance of securing the nomination, even though Atlantic City and surrounding counties are a hotbed of Townsendism.

Determined Not To Play On Yom Kippur

DETROIT (Spl.)—When Hank Greenberg, stellar first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, announced last summer that he would not play baseball on Yom Kippur, many Jewish fans thought it was just an eccentric whim.

But Hank declared quite emphatically recently, "I've made up my mind that I'll never put on a uniform on Yom Kippur, whether it falls on a world series day or not."

Mickey Cochrane said recently that "Hank is a cinch to take over his first base assignment when he gets to camp."

DETROIT (Spl.)—Donald Ross, a newly signed Jewish player of the Detroit Tigers, is regarded as one of the best rookie finds of the season. He is expected to give Marvin Owen a real race for the latter's third base job with the Tigers. He is from Beaumont, way out west in the Cactus Leagues.

Aid To Poor Jews Scant

NEW YORK (Spl.)—Statistics indicating that Jews are not providing adequate relief assistance to their own poor were released this week by the National Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, which has completed a survey of opinions of Jewish welfare leaders throughout the United States.

Out of 241 executive directors, board members, rabbis, labor leaders, case workers and other lay and professional people connected with Jewish federations and family welfare agencies in 122 cities, all but one accept the necessity of public relief for needy Jewish families. About 80 per cent see public relief as a permanent part of Jewish family care.

Some feel that public relief should become an accepted part of Jewish welfare work, and that its standard should be raised by supplementary work on the part of Jewish welfare agencies. Others expressed fear that a supplemental program would invite establishment of a low standard in governmental relief work.

The view of about 35 per cent of the responses was best cited by the president of a large family agency, who wrote:

"My thought is that as citizens of this country or members of the general community, we Jews should avail ourselves fully of all

WARSAW (JTA)—"Jim Crow" cars have been introduced for Jews on the Warsaw-Ottock branch of the railroad, whose trains have recently been the scene of several anti-Jewish assaults. Jewish travellers were notified they must use the cars when travelling on the line.

Twenty Jewish youths were arrested at Salonica, near Ottock, for organizing a self defense unit for passengers.

Artist Wins Fame At 17

NEW YORK (JTA)—A seventeen-year-old Jewish "messenger boy" won a prize of $200 and a remarkable distinction in the National Academy of Painting show held here recently.

Maurice Blumenfeld, highly talented young artist from the New York ghetto, was mistaken for a messenger boy when he shrinkingly brought his painting into the Academy's exhibition room before the show. The janitor took the painting and told Maurice to beat it.

After the canvas, called "Refreshments," won the prize, the identity of its painter was learned and Maurice became the youngest artist to have a painting hung at the exhibition in the 111-year history of the Academy.

Modesty has kept Maurice out of the spotlight until now. He was voted "most modest" in a high school election. His father, a New York clothing worker, had to overcome the lad's shyness to induce him to bring his painting to the exhibition. The boy's background is a composite of the ghettos of Russia, Paris and New York.
